Overseas forces have made China suffer from schizophrenia - Wenmiao - World Wide Blog - World Wide Reader Network (computer version)

The three terms of overseas forces, overseas forces or overseas hostile forces have become popular in China in recent years. These three words have the same meaning, but only a slight difference. The breadth and depth of Chinese culture has once again made modern human civilization dumbfounded in the expression of these three contexts. Recently, some netizens have analyzed the connotation of overseas forces, and also mentioned that "China has two most mysterious organizations, one is called relevant departments, and the other is called overseas forces. The former specializes in doing good things, and the latter specializes in doing bad things. It sounds quite reasonable and remiscent. The main difference between overseas forces and overseas forces is that the former alludes to Hong Kong, Macao and Taiwan. It is a euphemistic expression of overseas hostile forces to regard Hong Kong, Macao and Taiwan as "compatriots". These three forces have no form, and the scope is much larger than that of the "organization". What many Chinese people want to say in their hearts is: those who don't praise me, those who don't like me, those who don't appreciate my power, and those who don't..., are all of our ethnic groups. I want to say that I am the enemy, but I don't have the guts, so I can only vent it with force.

One of the characteristics of Chinese character culture is the vague and indirect description. It seems that the more ambiguous it is, the more Chinese it is. Don't believe it? If you look up Chinese encyclopedias or Mao Xi's masterpieces, no one will tell you truthfully and in detail what are overseas forces, overseas forces or overseas hostile forces. But there is a simple way that may help you "wake up", which is more timely than the chicken soup culture you often see in WeChat or Xiaohongshu, or "wake up the lake. If you dare to climb over the wall, you can patiently read the description of this article, and maybe you will pat your thigh: I see, this blog platform is a proper overseas hostile force!

Congratulations on your correct answer, but I'm sorry for you; it's time to take medicine.

Foreign forces have been tearing and ravaming Chinese culture for thousands of years, but not many people are willing to see its positive meaning. Human civilization is the crystallization of the collision, intertwining and integration of different cultures. In the West, the spirit of independent thinking and criticism is a normal personality. However, Chinese culture is mostly attached on the surface, but not in essence. Flattery and servile culture are the most essential part of the Chinese Confucius and Mencius's way. The reason is simple and also direct and rough. The view of anything or thing does not need to carefully sort out objective evidence or logical analysis. It only needs to speculate on the above intention, open the mouth, and everything will be over. Because we are the greatest and the most powerful... This position will never change. Of course, my description does not include all Chinese cultural circles and people who use Chinese characters.

Over the past five hundred years, the world has undergone earth-shaking changes. But the Chinese, mainly the Han Chinese, have always lived in an era of love and hatred for foreign forces. The dynasties of the Yuan and Qing Dynasties were the result of the enslavement of the Central Plains by foreign forces. In the Ming Dynasty, which was ruled by the Han Chinese, the people did not live a good life. However, the Yuan and Qing Dynasties expanded their territory. Although they were raped by foreigners for hundreds of years, many Chinese people today can still experience or have sex with the prosperity of Genghis Khan or Kang Yongqian, and they do not feel embarrassed or far-fetched at all. Speaking of it, it's full of "positive energy" and a comfortable and cheerful face.

In recent years, when Chinese people frequently mention foreign forces, they are often accompanied by the explanation or reprimand of "positive energy". This unclear mentality, plausible or logical confusion, is often the characteristics of undeveloped or inferior cultural people. However, most Chinese people are obviously not ashamed of this. Instead, they rely on the large number of people and often do their own things in international occasions, which has caused widespread and inevitable embarrassment or contempt. As a result, it has promoted more opposition and conflict between overseas forces and domestic "positive energy". In the past two hundred years or earlier, the overseas forces coming from the sea and the foreign forces coming south of the original northern barbarian tribes have been endlessly fighting. The Han people in the Central Plains are completely at a loss. They have been struggling in the years of illusion and pain, and there has not been much improvement for generations.

Westerners opened the door and brought new culture, new religion, new technology and many new things. This is better than wrapping small feet, no water pumping pits, and no crotch pants... I don't know how many steps have progressed. It is difficult to describe how much foreign forces have contributed to the development of Chinese society. Chinese people's hairstyles have changed, their clothes have changed, their taste of eating has changed, and even the words spit out of their mouths are scary. A revolution at a time, I don't think that if I change other people's lives, I will spoil my appetite.

In modern times, overseas forces have never stopped on the stage of China. The Chinese are wary of Westerners with high noses, calling them

"ghosts" or "fan ghosts". In addition to the concessions of Hong Kong, Macao and mainland cities, the most fierce fights in modern Chinese history are the "Dongyang Ghost" and the "Polar Bear". China's elites rushed to ally with these two overseas forces, first Sun Dagong, to make the revolution successful. In that era, the overseas forces were all fragrant buns. For example, although Mao Zedong allied with the "Polar Bear", he still missed "American democracy". The Soviet Union and Japan both wanted to defeat China, but Japan failed in the end. History is so strange. According to the Communist Party of China, Tsarist Russia annexed 1.5 million square kilometers of Chinese land and dismembered Outer Mongolia. According to the consistent propaganda, such a deep hatred cannot be swallowed by people with a normal mind.

But the Chinese not only swallowed dead cats or dead flies, but also smiled and recognized their ancestors. Mao changed his mouth to call Stalin a loving father, and let hundreds of millions of people call himself and the Party parents. As a result, they all nominally became the turtle sons or grandsons of the "polar bear". In terms of the driving ability of foreign forces, the "Toyo Ghosts" who pay more or less attention to "the same kind" and "etiquette integrity" are obviously willing to bow down, but Japan's cultural input is successful. Not only does "revolution" come from Japan, but it is said that more than 70% of the words in modern Chinese come from Japan. Without the participation of foreign forces, even language expression has become a problem for Chinese people. They can't say "I'm going to kill you" every day, which is still revolutionary elegance, conciseness and ambiguity. This article discusses overseas forces, and the application of the word "power" may also come from Japan. In this way, people who hate foreign forces and like to use the benefits of foreign forces must be sick.

In the late Cultural Revolution, China opened the door to the foreign forces of the United States, Japan and Europe. At that time, I was still young. I always thought that Chinese people were xenophobic in their hearts, probably because China was the center of the world. However, seeing the government and society completely turned upside down overnight and tried their best to swell overseas guests, I knew that the pride, arrogance and self-indescence of the Chinese people came from the inferiority from the bottom of their hearts. This dual character has shaped the true face of China in the past hundred years.

Not all Chinese people regard overseas forces as flood beasts. Before Sun Yat-sen, a large number of open-minded ancestors along the coast had voted with their feet and defected to foreigners or Western forces. Of course, the closest foreign forces to mainland China are Hong Kong and Macao. The nearby people know the truth of overseas and are not fooled by the authorities. Since the 1950s, a large number of people have fled Hong Kong. The rise of Hong Kong witnessed the fact that feudal culture and Soviet-Russian socialism could not save China. After reaching the "brink of economic collapse", the mainland in the late Mao period had to bow to the overseas forces, so opening up was a helpless choice. First of all, Hong Kong and Macao took the lead in opening the door of economic development, and many Taiwanese businessmen, Japanese businessmen, etc. followed closely. Having overseas relations has become a symbol of the identity of many domestic people. In the early 1980s, in the newly opened Guangzhou Garden Hotel, young girls lined up every day, waiting to meet overseas people who came on blind dates and embraced foreign forces. At that time, there was also a folk song in Shanghai: first-class beauties married "American soldiers", second-class women married "Japanese soldiers", third-class women married "national soldiers", and last-class ugly women married "communist soldiers".

In the following 40 years, China gradually became a year of reorganization and entered the world. Naturally, foreign forces lost a wide survival market. Many people have seen clearly that without foreign forces, Chinese people only deserve to drink the northwest wind. Over the past 40 years, relying on a variety of foreign hostile forces, China has slowly developed. China's accession to the WTO is a major event at the beginning of this century, indicating that China has entered the family of overseas forces. The United States and the West have gradually joined the integration and investment with China's economy, and the large-scale wave of going abroad began to become popular in the mainland. Thinking about the ridicule of overseas forces in the past, it's really shameful.

Who would have thought that in the past ten years, China has returned to its original starting point. After becoming awesome, he began to forget his original. From the beneficiary of the international order to the destroyer of the international order, the reason is inseparable from the selfish interests of the authoritarian oligarchs: the intention to protect the hereditary privileged interests of a very few people. Therefore, overseas hostile forces have become their heart disease again. They learned the tone of the top lady in the brothel: because we are too beautiful, the market is large and the competition is fierce, and the prostitutes outside are all jealous of us. "My heart is immortal". They got the wrong position. Once the prostitutes know that you have Hualiu disease, who dares to start again?

There are too many strange things on the mainland that can't be thought about and analyzed carefully. For example, the ruling party has always made a fortune by relying on foreign forces. So far, it still holds the "polar bear"'s buttocks and drools, as if it has completely forgotten the loss of 1.5 million square kilometers of Chinese land. Such an ugly thing, people with normal personalities will think of avoiding suspicion or feeling ashamed. However, in recent years, the propaganda of the mainland has begun to develop towards the tone of hatred of overseas forces, and the small island of Taiwan has become a vent of "an inch of territory cannot be less". Is it really forgetful or insane?

Hong Kong is a typical example of verifying split personality. Not only because of Hong Kong's fame and its central position in the world's finance, transportation and other fields, but also because of its former glory and decline, it has witnessed the history of the rise and fall of a schizophrenic country. This madhouse does not lack rational and normal people, but the high proportion of people suffering from schizophrenia, the seriousness of the disease and the number of critical people who cannot be taken for medicine, is the peak of human history.

The descendants of China, who were ravaged and raped by the "polar bear" a hundred years later, not only have poor memory, but also are unruly and logically confused, but also often speak incomprecent and full of nonsense. According to the treaty, the "Northern Hong Kong" "Ladidistok" occupied by Russia should be returned to China in 1995, which is the promise of Lenin and others, not to mention the friendship of "no upper limit". However, if the mentally normal mainlanders say a few more words, they will be designated as overseas hostile forces and at risk of being imprisoned.

The British returned a glorious Hong Kong in 1997, but the mentally ill people will not be grateful. These people regard the rule of law, human rights and freedom in the civilized world as flood beasts and hate them to death. How can rational and normal people communicate or reason with schizophrenic patients? That's a waste of time and brain power. However, there are still many normal people on the earth, and there are also many people on the verge of schizophrenia. This is the purpose of this article. Please don't talk nonsense anymore. To clean up the madhouse, you can't rely on the means of dealing with ordinary people, but by unconventional methods such as electric shock. The end of psychopaths is generally not very good, that is, pitiful and hateful. Who is to blame?

Mainland China sprays foreign forces every day, and overseas forces or overseas hostile forces have finally ushered in the decoupling of the world. Everyone no longer treats you as the leader, and they also hate your willow disease. What else can you do? Rolling around and playing tricks can only be hit by a stronger electric shock. Of course, the people on the mainland will suffer, first of all, Hong Kong, which has been awakened. The following is a recent example. Let's remember that these people who don't want to be slaves don't think that they have nothing to do with themselves. They are the backbone and hope of the nation!
